PREFACE

These problems were prepared during the past school year for the use of students in Elementary Economics at Ohio State University in connection with Clay's Economics for the General Reader and Ely's Outlines of Economics. The arrangement follows the order of assignments in the two books that has been found satisfactory. Obviously, the subject matter of the outline and, to a considerable degree, its arrangement were determined by the contents of the two books rather than by the judgment of the author.

Several of the problems are taken from Professor F. M. Taylor's Principles of Economics and from his examination lists. A few are taken from the author's Problems and Exercises in Economics published by Henry Holt and Company.
