1) Memorial Day	a) George Washington was the country's first president. Abraham Lincoln was another popular American president. Americans remember him because he was the head of the country at the difficult time of the American Civil War. Their birthdays were both in February and Americans celebrate them together.
2) Thanksgiving Day	b) This is not an official holiday but it is a very special day. On this day children dress in costumes of witches, ghosts, monsters, etc. The windows of many houses have decorations. In the evening the children go from house to house, knock on doors and say "trick or treat". People in the houses usually give the children sweets or some other treat.
3) Presidents' Day	c) Americans celebrate this holiday every year in November. On this day a lot of Americans visit their families and have a traditional big dinner of turkey and different vegetables, sweet potatoes and a pumpkin pie. All together they say thank you to God and to each other for help, as the first settlers did in the 17th century, when they gathered to have a feast ¹ with the Native Americans.
4) Christmas 5) Halloween	d) This is an important time for giving presents. People begin buying presents long before the celebration. Many families put up and decorate a fir tree and make special cookies. Small children think that their presents come from Santa Claus.

NE Christopher Columbus

Christopher Columbus [kə 'lambəs] (1451—1506) was a sailor¹. He discovered² America for Spain in 1492. After that he returned to America three more times. At that time they believed that the new land was not America, but Asia.

Like many people of his time, Columbus knew that our planet is round. Sailors from Europe sailed east to the “Indies” (Asia). They brought back gold and many other wonderful things. Columbus thought that if he sailed west but not east he could get to Indies too. The queen and king of Spain gave him ships and money to sail there.

² to discover [dɪs 'kʌvə] — открывать, делать открытия

In 1492, Columbus sailed west on three small ships, the Santa Maria, the Pinta and the Niña. The ships sailed for three weeks. The sailors didn't see any land and became afraid. Then on October 12 they saw an island in the ocean. Columbus named it San Salvador. When he returned to Spain, he had a hero's welcome.

Columbus thought that the new land was Indies. This is why he called the people he met Indians. These islands still have the name of the West Indies.

When Columbus sailed to America for the third time, he landed on the coast of today's Venezuela. People think that it was the first time in 500 years for a European to set foot on the American Continent. Columbus's travels are some of the most important happenings in history.
