

---

A Country Book

Howitt William

---

Title: A Country Book

Author: Howitt William

This is an exact replica of a book. The book reprint was manually improved by a team of professionals, as opposed to automatic/OCR processes used by some companies. However, the book may still have imperfections such as missing pages, poor pictures, errant marks, etc. that were a part of the original text. We appreciate your understanding of the imperfections which can not be improved, and hope you will enjoy reading this book.

A JUNE NIGHT.

Front.

A COUNTRY BOOK:

FOR

The Field, the Forest, and the Fireside.

BY

WILLIAM HOWITT,

AUTHOR OF "THE BOOK OF THE SEASONS," "RURAL LIFE OF ENGLAND,"
ETC. ETC.

THIRD EDITION,

With Illustrations from Designs by Birket Foster.

LONDON:

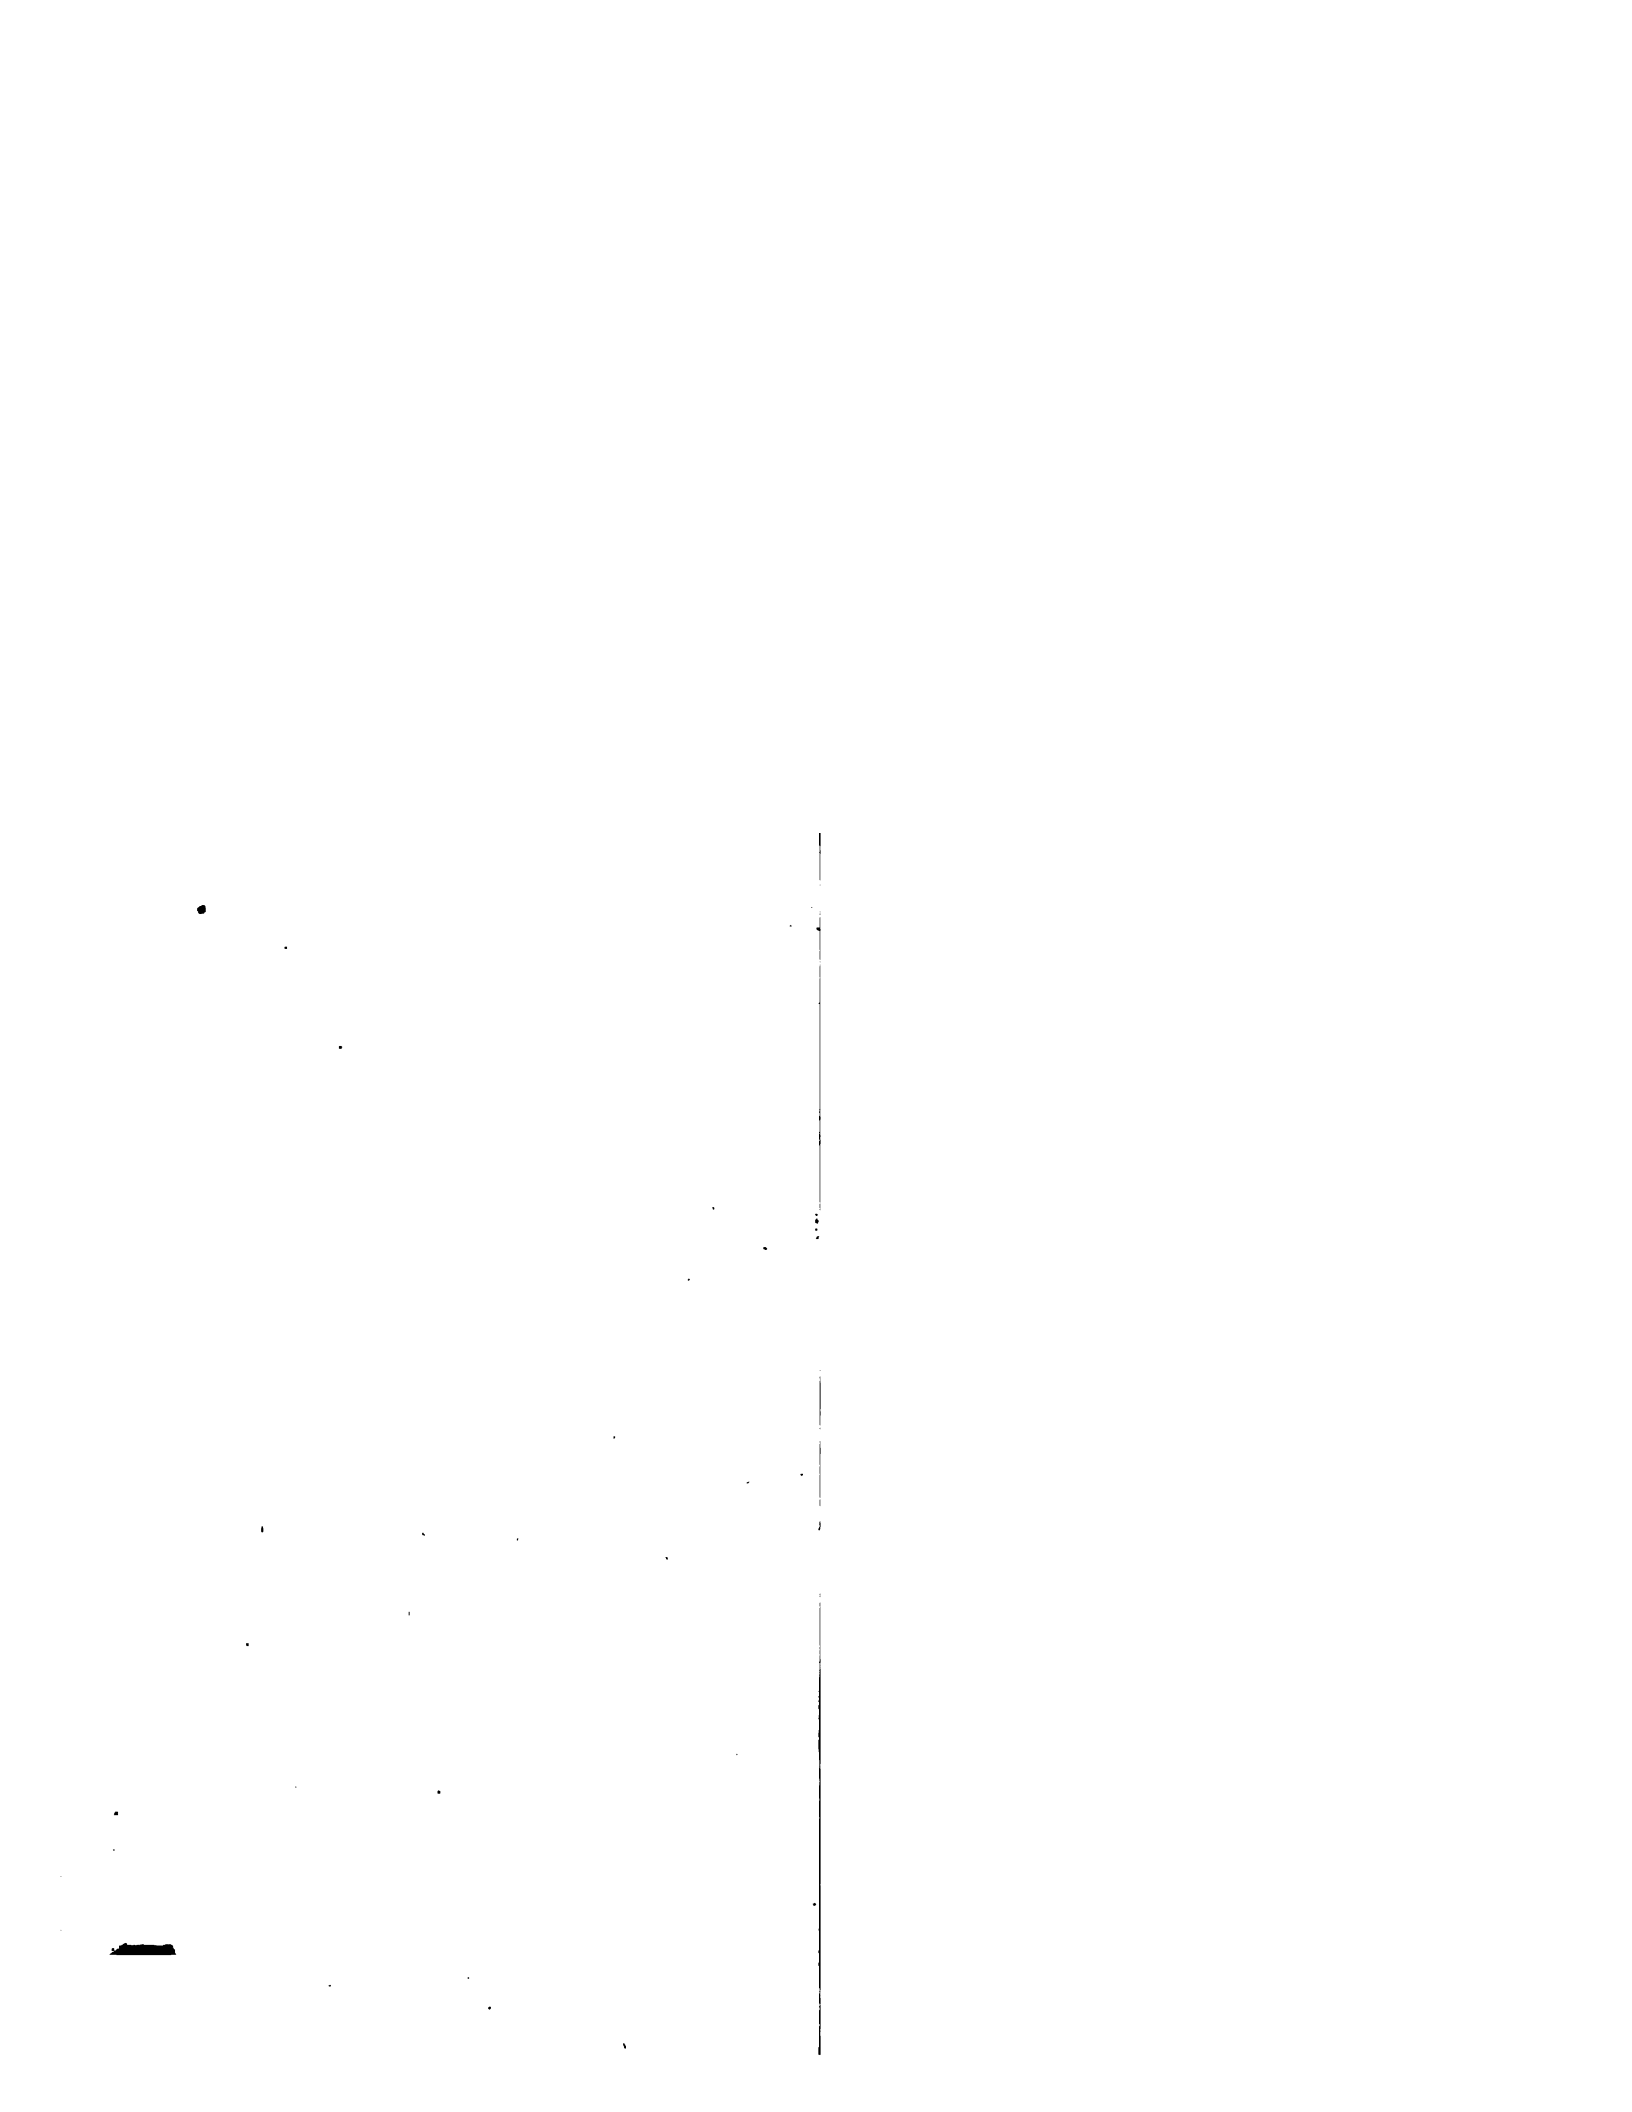

G. ROUTLEDGE & CO. FARRINGTON STREET;

NEW YORK: 18, BEEKMAN STREET.

1859.

QH
81
H862
1850

CONTENTS.

---

CHAPTER I.

Old-fashioned winters—Skating—Sledging abroad—Social amusements at home and abroad—Symptoms of spring—"Hoar frost"—"The farmer's daughter"—Farm-houses dangerous places—Pretty Anne Field and Captain Jenkinson—Dolly Collyflower—Miss Nancy Farley and her metamorphoses.—Page 1.

CHAPTER II.

Thaws and house-flowers—Flight of birds—Symptoms of spring—Sonnet, "February weather"—A plea for holidays—Folly of attempting to bring back the old ones—Must prepare new ones suited to the age—"The country schoolmaster"—The schoolmaster's love-letter—The schoolmaster in a thousand picturesque places—The Rev. Robert Walker—The school at Firbank chapel—Our debts to the country schoolmaster—"A winter picture."—Page 21.

CHAPTER III.

March in its wakening strength—The country all alive—"Mothering Sunday"—Customs at this season here and abroad—Preservation of the poetical life abroad—Tomb of the maiden of Archangel—"The Sabbath"—Nooks of England—"Singular sects"—The liver by faith—The mysterious preacher: his singular story—Bryanites and Thornites—Their prevalence in Cornwall—Mullockites—Visit to the chapel of Thomas Mullock, who wanted to teach Lord Byron "a new kind of Christianity."—William Theobald, the Quaker Swedenborgian—The Rosites, or deformed Quakers—Singular scenes in their chapel.—Page 45.

CHAPTER IV.

Charms of the season—Stanzas from Elliott, expressive of the spirit of the season—Old English flowers and their associations—Shakspere's love of April, daffodils and violets—Scenes in the country—Poem by a Sheffield grinder—"Easter"—Customs abroad and at home—Pace-egg—"The old squire"—His character—His silent friend, Wagstaff—His son Tom—His annoyances at upstart families; the upstart of upstarts, Abel Grundy—"The primrose-gatherer"—Outpouring of the London artisans into Epping Forest at different seasons—Scene in Bethnal-green—Sunday morning market for singing-birds and penny plants—The primrose-gatherer there—"Coming Spring," by Mary Howitt.—Page 86.

CHAPTER V.

The cowslip—A record of the progress of the month as kept in Surrey—Poem, "the Nightingale"—Stanzas from a Spanish poet—Singular change of note in the nightingale—Stanzas, "May is come, and May is flying"—"May-day," formerly the festival of spring—Traces of its antiquity—May-day customs in France, Germany, Sweden, and England—A different festival proposed—"The young squire:" a type of the change of the times—His education and progress—Marries Lady Barbara Ridemdown—Lady Barbara's beauty and literary taste—They travel; become patrons of literature and patterns of style, and of Christian benevolence—They invade the old squire annually with a visit, which he terms "the annual hurricane"—Plan great changes when the old squire is gone.—Page 113.

CHAPTER VI.

Record of June, as kept in Surrey—Strolls through the woods—Cuckoo's eggs—Butcher-birds—Black adders—Poetry of June nights—June flowers—June in the Peak of Derbyshire—June Excursions—"Whitsuntide"—Its clubs and village processions—Decay of these—A new festival proposed, adapted to present tastes—"Green boughs from the forest"—Queen Elizabeth's lodge in Epping Forest—The two Thompsons, of Sherwood Forest—Curious history of each—"The young bird of passage."—Page 141.

CHAPTER VII.

July the holiday time of Nature—The scent of hay and summer flowers—Cheap trains a new feature of the times—"Bathing"—Growing obstructions to its enjoyment in the country—Increased facilities in towns—River baths on the continent—"Singular proceedings of the sand-wasp"—"Bringing home"—Under this head how many striking and touching events of human life—The peasant general—The new rector—"Dreadful changes: an old mau's story."—Page 168.

CHAPTER VIII.

Sentiment of divine greatness and goodness inspired by the month of harvest—"Harvest-home," a holiday—Harvest-home as it used to be in good old farm-houses, contrasted with its aspect in later years—"A day and night in the forest"—The day there—Visit to Oxtou Common—Hunting snipes' nests amongst the sedges—Magnificent spectacle of burning gorse—The bailiff—The old gravellers—Bailiff invites us to his house—Scenes there—The night there—The Bailiff's story of the death of the game-keeper.—Page 195.

CHAPTER IX.

Gathering of fruits—Picking of hops—Sportsmen in the fields—Wild fruits and mushrooms—Crowds of working men and boys attracted by these from large towns—"Michaelmas;" formerly a jolly goose-eating season—Now chiefly a landlords' festival—Rents and not tenants the predominant idea—Signs of social improvement—"Autumnal excursions"—"A few days' tour in the Odenwald"—Melibocus—The old village schoolmaster—Primitive people and manners—Threshing out corn in the field—The sea of rocks and the giant's pillar—A scene in the woods—Rodenstein the scene of the legend of the wild hunter—The castle of Erbach, and its story of the daughter of Charlemagne—Hunting-box of the prince of Leiningen—The Katzenbuckel—Drive along the Neckar Thal—Castle of Götze von Berlichingen—Weinsberg and the peasants' war—The Seer of Prevorst—Justinus Kerner, the poet and ghost-seer—Heilbronn and homewards.—Page 231.

CHAPTER X.

The season of forest splendour—The thistle-down—Warnings of the declining year—The departure of the swallow—Autumnal excursions—Trip to the Heidenmauer, or camp of Attila; and to Trifels, the prison of Cœur de Lion in the Vosges—Drive amongst the vineyards—Dürkheim—Fine scenery about it—The inn of the Four Seasons—The Heidenmauer, or camp of Attila, scene of Cooper's novel—Christian Kinzel, the tailor, Cooper's guide—Abbey of Limburg—Scene of Siegfried's combat with the dragon—Castle of Hardenburg, former seat of the princes of Leiningen—The Teufel-Stein, or Devil's Stone—Wild scenery and legends of the spot—Further drive amongst the vineyards by Neustadt, Edenkoben, etc., to Annweiler—Striking character of the country—The castle of Trifels on its lofty height—Where did Blondel discover Richard Cœur de Lion?—Richard's sojourn here—View of the place and of the country round—Vicinity of the Ban de la Roche.—Page 286.

CHAPTER XI.

Circumstances of life, rather than the month, melancholy—Approach of winter—"The haunted house in Charnwood"—The mystery solved—"The English peasant"—His multifarious character—His appearance in different parts of the country—The peasant as a walking machine—The peasant as a man—In his youth; at the fair, or statutes.—Page 313.

CHAPTER XII.

The severity of the season reminds us of the necessities of our neighbours—"Cold abroad and warmth at home"—How much is endured for the warmth of the fireside—Miseries of the poor in London in winter—Out-of-door pleasures—The farmer's occupations—"Remarkable dreams, warnings, and providences:" The winter fireside the place for legend and story—The needle-woman's dream—The mission of old Thomas Waring to the town of Ross—The forewarning dream of an American lady—Lady Esmond and her children—The Quakers during the American war—The Rev. George Biddulph's dream—Dream revealing the relative of Serjeant B——, murdered at Plymouth—The Dutch fisherman's wife—Smaller instances of realized dreams and warnings: "The disasters of Hans Nadeltreiber"—His troubles through not trusting his wife—"God and good everywhere"—"New Year's Eve"—The year has once more rolled round—The impression which the close of a year makes on the mind in all nations—Customs abroad—Santo Claus in America—Conclusion.—Page 337.