“It is what a man has been, not where he has been, that really interests and instructs us. It is the history of his mind and heart, and not a chronicle of the accidents that befell him, that produces good.”

So wrote the subject of these memorial pages in introducing to his readers the sketch of his venerable friend HALLIBURTON. Such is the conviction that has guided the present writer in his attempt to fulfil the self-imposed and filial task of preparing this record of a long, happy, and eminently useful life.

PORTSMOUTH, September, 1879.
