The pleasure of having come into possession of this extremely important collection of letters and my interest in seeing them preserved for the historical use and reading of future generations are sufficient reasons for issuing this volume.

In making up a sketch of the life of General Ebenezer Huntington, no claim is made of introducing any new facts or original matter. I induced Mr. G. W. F. Blanchfield of Hartford, Connecticut, who discovered these letters to write this introduction although he is a new man in this field of literature. I think the mere fact of his discovery of these letters entitles him to the honor.
