The training of the twig (religious education of children)

Drawbridge Cyprian Leycester
Title: The training of the twig (religious education of children)

Author: Drawbridge Cyprian Leycester

This is an exact replica of a book. The book reprint was manually improved by a team of professionals, as opposed to automatic/OCR processes used by some companies. However, the book may still have imperfections such as missing pages, poor pictures, errant marks, etc. that were a part of the original text. We appreciate your understanding of the imperfections which can not be improved, and hope you will enjoy reading this book.
THE TRAINING OF THE TWIG WORKS BY THE REV. C. L. DRAWBRIDGE

THE TRAINING OF THE TWIG
(RELIGIOUS EDUCATION OF CHILDREN)

Crown 8vo. Half rough calf. 3s. net.

OLD BELIEFS AND NEW KNOWLEDGE

Crown 8vo. 1s. 6d. net

"It is a book to read, to keep, to use, and to constantly refer to. Mr. Drawbridge here proves that there is no necessity for divorce between devotion and intelligence—between intuition and science—and between what we believe and what we know. ... His short, concise sentences carry conviction with them. They bristle with facts and doctrines."—Church Bells.

IS RELIGION UNDERMINED?

Crown 8vo.

LONGMANS, GREEN & CO.
LONDON, NEW YORK, AND BOMBAY
THE TRAINING OF THE TWIG
(RELIGIOUS EDUCATION OF CHILDREN)

BY THE REV.
C. L. DRAWBRIDGE, M.A.

NEW IMPRESSION

LONGMANS, GREEN, AND CO.
39, PATERNOSTER ROW, LONDON
NEW YORK AND BOMBAY
1906
All rights reserved
"Neglect of the art of education simply means that the teacher must, at best, blunder his way to success, laboriously correct his errors by the failure or mischief produced, and slowly discover things for himself which others have discovered before him. Why should we tread the thorny path of error, or traverse the dreary swamps of failure, when a safer, pleasanter, and shorter path has been pointed out to us by those who have travelled the road before us?"

Landon.
PREFACE

The object of this book is to deal popularly, and simply, with the rudiments of the science and art of religious education of children. It is intended for the use of parents and teachers—of parents because they are responsible for the souls of the children they have called into being—of teachers because having undertaken a part of the parents’ responsibility, they naturally desire to know how to fulfil the duties of the position they have assumed.

I am indebted to Landon, Trumbull, and others who have written very ably upon the subject of education.

Hamstead, N.W.

January, 1905
CONTENTS

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Section</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>I. Childhood is the seed-time of life</td>
<td>1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>II. “The child is father of the man.” “Just as the twig is bent the tree’s inclined”</td>
<td>3</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>III. The child’s character is “wax to receive and marble to retain” impressions</td>
<td>5</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>IV. Jesus Christ and children—An object-lesson to us</td>
<td>6</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>V. Education as a means to a definite end</td>
<td>11</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>VI. Educating mind, conscience, will, and affections</td>
<td>15</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>VII. “Who is sufficient for these things?”</td>
<td>17</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>VIII. The teacher as a medium between God and the child</td>
<td>20</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>IX. Truth through Personality</td>
<td>22</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>X. Influence—How to gain and use it</td>
<td>26</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>XI. Love—The great motive power</td>
<td>31</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>XII. Knowing what to teach</td>
<td>34</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>XIII. The act of teaching enriches the teacher’s mind, and character, in very many ways</td>
<td>36</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>XIV. What is teaching?</td>
<td>39</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Contents

XV. Telling is not teaching . . . . 43

XVI. The co-operation of pupil and teacher in a dual process . . . . 46

XVII. Restlessness is energy running to waste . 48

XVIII. The least common denominator between the ideas of teacher and pupil . . . . 51

XIX. The relation of attention to interest . 54

XX. Curiosity, the appetite of the mind—How to raise and use it . . . . 56

XXI. Curiosity must be gradually satisfied . 59

XXII. The Socratic method of inducing thought and effort . . . . 61

XXIII. Vagueness in the teacher, produces confusion in the pupil . . . . 64

XXIV. How and where to begin a lesson . . . . 67

XXV. Opening questions, and their uses . . . . 70

XXVI. Utilising the child’s natural instinct of investigation . . . . 72

XXVII. Words are not ideas . . . . 74

XXVIII. An illustration of how to teach ideas . 77

XXIX. Analysing a subject, and breaking it up into palatable morsels . . . . 82

XXX. Correct sequence of ideas, in the mind of teacher and pupil . . . . 85

XXXI. Do not hurry . . . . 89

XXXII. Gaps in the teaching are missing links in the pupil’s chain of ideas . . . . 91